

Serving the East Coast & Puerto Rico, FDS Inc Specializes in Transforming Houses into Personal Oases

In business since 2002, FDS Inc is a full-service interior design firm that assists clients with their design needs across the United States. Lori Feldman, founder and principal designer, is an interior architect with a keen eye for beauty. Her intent when approaching a new project is to get inside her client's head so that she can discover exactly what style they desire. First, she learns how her client lives, and then she creates an oasis where her client can comfortably enjoy their life.

Many of the projects FDS Inc takes on are large-scale construction projects—spaces that require many decisions that can be overwhelming for the client. Lori's goal is to be the calming force in the sometimes tumultuous storm of designing an interior haven. When a project gets stressful for a client, Lori steps in to bring peace to the situation, to set her client's mind to rest about any concerns. Showing respect for the client's needs is her top priority, as she demonstrated while renovating this space in the depth of New York City.

Over the years her clients had purchased several apartments within a single town house, and they decided it was time to combine four of them into a zen oasis. The goal was to craft a peaceful space, something to balance the hectic NYC lifestyle. This was achieved by a clever use of maple. The use of this light-colored material created a fluid effect through the town house that was entirely unique.

As these traditional town houses are quite narrow, Lori also ingeniously maximized the square footage with hidden spaces behind maple panels which included a bar and a bathroom. Once finished, the clients were in love with how modern and calming the home had become. Only Lori could have turned these four cramped, divided apartments into one cohesive space.
